

Time to read!

☀️ The newscaster Jessica Bones is presenting today's news. Read the news announcements.

Good morning. This is the seven o'clock news. Sally the crocodile escaped from the zoo yesterday morning. She was spotted¹ by a group of students waiting at a bus stop near the zoo, but she wasn't seen by anybody else.

5 Officers from the Department of Conservation were sent to look for her, without success. Please call the police on 2824 5000 if you have seen Sally.

In other news, soap opera star Harry Law, who is often called 'the star with the blue hat', was arrested last night at a convenience store. The actor with spiky² hair, from the popular daytime show Days and Nights, was caught trying to pay for a bottle of water using fake³ money. Law claimed that the money was a prop for the TV show. He found some in his pocket and used it by accident. The shop assistant did not recognise the star at first because he was in jeans and a plain T-shirt, with dark sunglasses.

It means in a way that is by mistake or not planned.

It is a small object used by actors in a drama.

15 Some breaking news has just come in — a volcano on the island of Marta has started to erupt⁴. Let's go to our foreign correspondent on the island. Nick, can you tell us what is happening? Do you have the latest updates on the situation?

Jessica Bones

Nick

20 Hi, Jessica. I'm now on the island of Marta. The volcano started to erupt half an hour ago, but I'm told that all the people in the danger zone were evacuated⁵ to safety earlier this morning. Another volcano on the other side of the island is also starting to smoke. It means to give out smoke.

¹spot (verb) – to see someone or something suddenly

²spiky (adjective) – (of hair) sticking up from the head

³fake (adjective) – not real

⁴erupt (verb) – (of a volcano) to send out rocks and flames

⁵evacuate (verb) – to move people from a dangerous place to a safer one

Thank you, Nick. We'll bring you all the live coverage as the reports come in.

It means strange or different from what is usual.

25 And now, some rather odd news about two children with a secret. Here is a picture of 11-year-old twins Katie and Kelly. Katie is the one with freckles⁶ and Kelly is in purple. What is their secret? A pet baby elephant! For several weeks, they hid a baby elephant called Bobo in a wardrobe. They fed Bobo bananas, cucumbers and nachos.

The elephant was not seen by the girls' busy parents. It was not heard by anyone either. It was discovered one day by the twins' mother when she opened the wardrobe to put away some clothes and, with unbelieving eyes, found the elephant with a scarf around its neck!

It means very difficult to make people believe.

And now the weather report with Charlie Frost.

40 Good morning. Let's look at the weather forecast for this week. Today, there'll be thunderstorms and heavy rain, so don't forget to take your umbrella or raincoat. The weather will improve by the end of the week. We expect the weekend to be hot and humid⁷ — good weather for elephants, perhaps!

Charlie Frost

★ Teaching Planner pages 3.13–3.14, 3.37
Dictionary skill — Foreign words

Worksheet 5
Dictionaries

Some commonly used English words are 'borrowed' from other languages. The words 'from ...' in some dictionaries tell you which language the word originally came from.

nachos noun
[plural] (from Spanish)
a Mexican snack consisting of tortilla chips served with cheese, beans and spices

⁶freckle (noun) – a small, light brown spot on the skin
⁷humid (adjective) – (of air) containing tiny drops of water